宸遊亭

Shinyujeong (Palace for Shin 宸, Leisure for Yu 遊, and summerhouse for Jeong 亭), which is the name of Halfway House No. 15, means the summerhouse where kings enjoyed their leisure time.

It is famous as a place where former presidents contemplated the management of our nation while drinking makgeolli.

It is also a significant place in terms of foreign diplomacy where golf rounds were held with many leaders from all over the world who visited South Korea, such as former U.S. president George Bush, former Japanese prime minister Nakasone, and former U.S. Secretary of Defense James Norman Mattis.
